Alemany Computer Lab Named after Supervisor Tom Ammiano

SAN FRANCISCO – The computer lab at Alemany Public Housing was named after Tom Ammiano because of his commitment to helping fund the much needed services, including the computer lab at Alemany. The residents of Alemany Public Housing, staff at Bernal Heights Neighborhood Center (BHNC) and the Alemany Resident Management Corporation surprised Tom Ammiano by announcing the computer lab at the public housing development would be named after him.

Tom has been a tremendous champion for addressing the needs of residents at Alemany Public Housing. His skill in making sure the funds for the lab made its way through the City's bureaucracy was instrumental in getting this computer lab established.

Tina Nguyen, BHNC job developer, says the computer lab makes it possible for her to provide individual counseling and small group sessions to help Alemany residents get ready for employment and to help them find jobs. The lab provides opportunities to residents to improve or develop new skills.

The residents of Alemany Public Housing say “Thank you Tom Ammiano” for the Tom Ammiano Computer Lab!
